FOULGER-PRATT CONTRACTING RANKED #17 BY WASHINGTON BUSINESS JOURNAL

Rockville, MD (May 30, 2012) – Foulger-Pratt Contracting has once again been ranked on the Washington Business Journal's Top 25 General Contractors list. The latest list, ranked by 2011 revenues, places Foulger-Pratt Contracting as #17, an improvement of our previous #19 ranking based on 2010 revenue.

John Barron, President of Foulger-Pratt Contracting said "I am very pleased with our continued growth and success as a quality general contractor. Our improved ranking on the Washington Business Journal's survey is especially impressive considering the highly competitive market we are currently experiencing."

Foulger-Pratt Contracting has recently broken ground on several new and exciting projects including The Exchange at Wheaton Station, a large transit-oriented development with 486 residential units over a Safeway grocery store plus other retail; Citron Apartments featuring 222 units; and the Rockville Metro Plaza II Class A Office building which is the future headquarters for Choice Hotels International, and was recently honored by the Washington Business Journal as the Best Real Estate Deal of 2011.
